Most common words used by prostate cancer survivors to describe their experience with our Nurse Navigator Program.

What a year it's been!

In 2019, we moved to a fantastic new location, welcomed another nurse to our team, boosted patient access to our programs, and revamped our website to serve you better (take a peek at islandprostatecentre.com).

They're exciting changes, but one constant remains – we're here to help when you need us.

Island Prostate Centre is the only non-profit that guides and empowers Vancouver Island men and their families as they navigate the uncertainty of a prostate cancer diagnosis.

Time and again, we hear comments like these:

"I can't imagine finding my way without Island Prostate Centre."

"I'm truly amazed by the kind and thoughtful support provided by all the staff and volunteers I met over two years of treatment."

"I know Island Prostate Centre will continue to be there for me."

We offer more than just information. We provide guidance in decision-making and time and space to talk things through – room that can be difficult to find.

We couldn't do it without you. We offer our services to those who need them at no cost. Thanks to the continued support of our donors, our event sponsors and our entire community, we are here to help because of you! And for that, we are extremely grateful.

Our volunteers are critical to the ongoing success of the Centre. We would like to extend a sincere thank you to all of the board members, program and event volunteers, along with staff for contributing their time and expertise and we look forward to all working together to guide IPC through another successful year.
